

About us

The Institute for Internet Security is an innovative, independent, scientific institution of the Westphalian University of Applied Sciences. In addition to research and development, we are a creative service provider in the field of IT-security.

Our task

We are actively engaged in research and development in several highly exciting areas, and also provide ongoing education and support to help users navigate the Internet with greater confidence and security.

We are currently looking for a Student Employee (m/w/d)

for the project „International Connections and Project generation “

If the following points appeal to you, feel free to apply to us and become a part of living research!

- #Experience in concepting and coordination of projects in national and international level
- # Responsibility for project and cost planning and project controlling
- # Communication with partners from research and industry
- # Experience in partner acquisition and contact maintenance
- #very good knowledge of German and English language
- #you want to improve the world

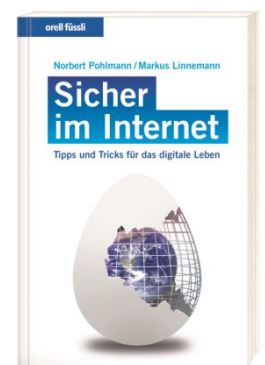

What we want

We are looking for motivation, team spirit and enthusiasm.

What we offer

A young team. A fresh new project with brand new topics. Numerous project partners from business and research. Flexible working hours. A foosball table.

Roberto Cagnazzo is looking forward to your digital application documents:
int.jobs@internet-sicherheit.de internet-sicherheit.de